A personal note from Andy

Your home, its appearance and comfort are of utmost importance to you - I feel the same way.

It warms my heart when I see people planning, budgeting, and deciding how best to create their home and give it their personal signature look and feel. That's true whether you've just purchased your first home or you've lived in it for years and are remodeling or renovating.

The process of refinishing or installing new hardwood floors can be challenging and you may be concerned about temporarily turning a part of your home into a job site.

My goal, and that of every person on my team, is to ensure that your experience is as stress-free and smooth as possible. I want you to remember this as an exciting time...when you were treated with superior customer service, complete fairness and honesty, and unparalleled professionalism.

Customer Service, Quality and Value are my guiding principles.

When I was a teen, my mentor was (and still is) Stew Leonard Sr. of the world famous, Stew Leonard's Dairy Stores. Stew sent me to Dale Carnegie training in Customer Service and he taught me about product quality and outstanding customer service. 40 years later, I still practice these principles; you can depend upon a high quality product and my full attention to you, my customer.

As you begin the process of selecting a contractor, please keep us in mind. We treat clients with the fairness we show our friends. Our pride in service and craftsmanship comes from the heart. We want you to be completely satisfied with expert work at an affordable price, delivered with the best attention to your needs in the industry.

We are professionally certified.

I hope you will give us an opportunity to serve you.

Sincerely,

Andy
